GOETHEIAN CAMELOT?

Spanning 5-1/2 months to 83 years, it was remarkable.

About a dozen, we sat "around" a rectangular line of tables, the senior namesake at the head, cousins, brothers, a great nephew, a few captive in-laws, an aunt, a niece, sharing a rare moment in weary times.

It was as if the Round Table of a 20th century realm had been opened to articulate women among their persevering men.

There was a tug, a tight throat at times. Some had not seen one another here and there at table for 20, even 25 years.

Someone noted more than once what a great thing to see sons and family joined. Each stood to speak.

A cousin, Scandanavian name among Teutonic, made a telling observation. And he was as detached an observer as any at such a celebration.

Said he: "You are going against the times. You are trying to bring people and things together. And I respect that."

It was a bit later that his wife, a friend of a cousin, sister to her husband, volunteered: "I learned a German song in the ninth grade." And she sang it. Well she sang it. In the language even the oldest there long ago dropped.

My father stood first, a solid, stoic sort of man. Eighty. Not as sharp as I remembered, but sharp as the cheese that made him famous in his day. And his recollections turned in a single analogy, how he dropped everything one day to stand at my oldest brother's wedding. He was to be bestman. And he conversed later by a line of questions which drew the other out, whoever it was, a habit which recalled a keen mind's keener days. He was wiser than I ever remembered.

There was a prayer from a brother who meant every word he said. He was the handsome one, the quietest one.

There was a speech, a professional inflection from a cousin whose leadership qualities are apparent among Midwest women's professionals. But sincere.

There was a bit of emotion from a niece whose son sent the generation count to four. Beautifully sincere.

The aunt spoke of bringing focus to a clan scattered to perhaps 10 states, collecting information, obituaries of diverse ones among us, some long dead. At 83, she remembered obscure addresses of obscure towns in youthful careers. She knew more about us than the collective knew of itself. And she knew the courage of truth, which after the speeches proved a mark of this sophisticated, traveled bunch.

Characterization for a novel or two spoke up.

Except for momentary emotion, the women spoke well, the men quietly and direct.

Genes seem to tell, when experience is so varied. Today's environment deals with a genetic code built by a million yesterdays. In this case, perhaps 40 generations.

A curious unity, call it love, found us out.

The Depression, world wars, success, failure, it was all there, needing little introduction.

Who was the strong, the most fortunate among us? Did it matter at that time? Of course not.

A mythology, a Goetheian Camelot?

It was a clear cut, arbitrary, articulated case of we.

City To Extend UR Project

The city's urban renewal program will be extended to include three blocks in the vicinity of city hall following adoption of a resolution by city council Tuesday accepting offer of the program from HUD. Council also accepted the resignation of Jim Hale as works superintendent.

A. W. McCullin, executive director of the city's present urban renewal program, told councilmen that the city has been offered a $100,000 grant to extend limits of the present project. The area will include Blocks 21,22,and 23. This is the block containing city hall, the block across the street from city hall and the block next to that one that housed the old machine shop.

The grant will be used to purchase the property and make improvements, including streets and sidewalks, and demolition of dilapidated buildings.

A public hearing on the acquisition will be held following publication of the resolution.

The council voted to accept "with regret" the resignation of Jim Hale, who is leaving for a better paying job in another city.

Controversy arose in the council chamber when Councilman Lincoln Mondrik offered a motion to hire J. B. Earle, of Rockdale, who was works superintendent before Hale was hired. Mayor Gene Blake recommended that the council advertise for applicants, since "There is a controversial figure involved." He said Earle could submit his application along with others.

After discussion Councilman Starrett Hickman seconded the motion. The mayor said council was "moving too fast" and again recommended taking applications for the job. Councilman Lawrence Zotz also favored taking applications.

It was pointed out during the discussion that the city would not be able to hire anyone at the present salary paid for the position.

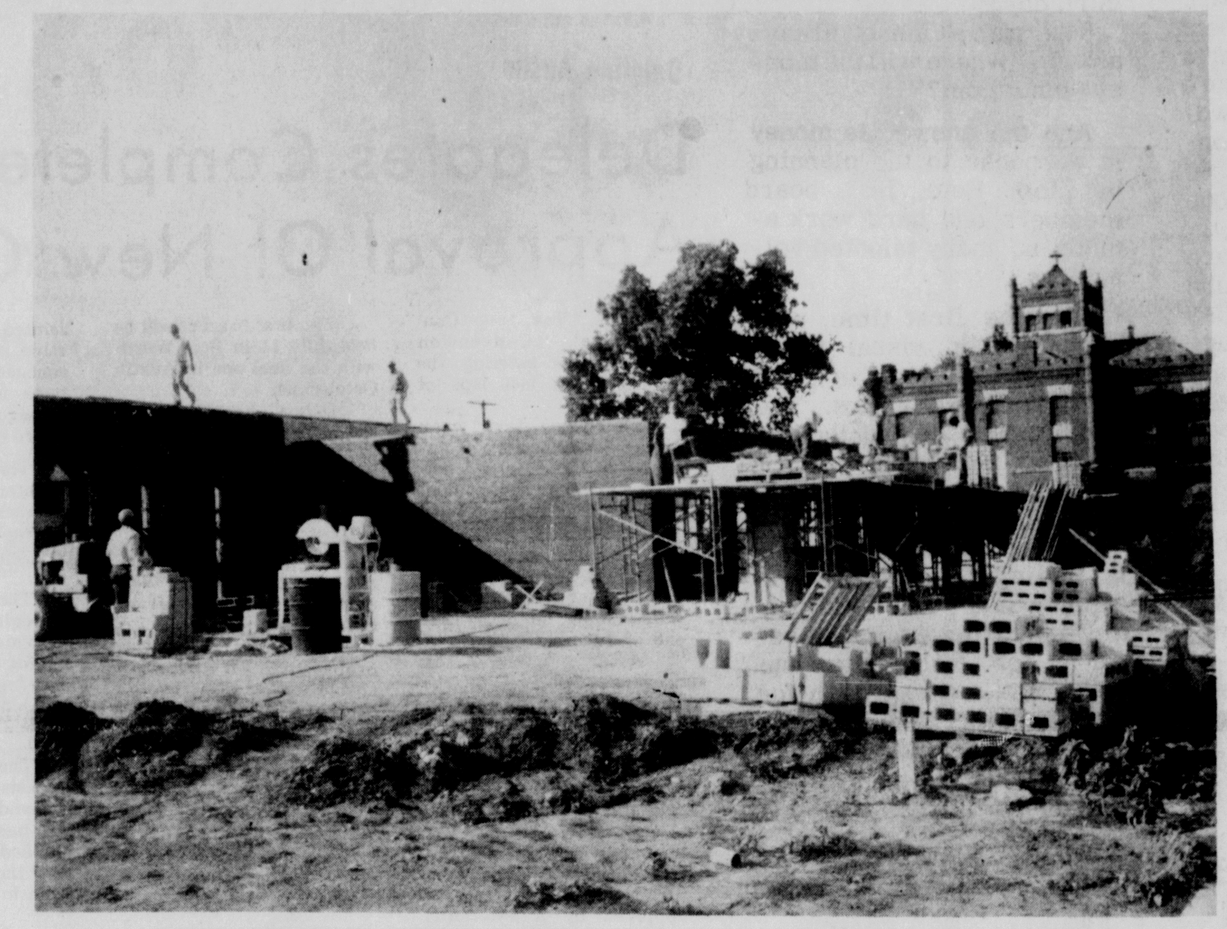
After further discussion the motion was put to a vote with Hickman and Mondrik voting yes and Zotz and Councilman Ernest Moore voting no. Councilman Bob Clark abstained. Mayor Blake broke the tie by voting no. A motion to take applications for the job carried unanimously.

Moore told of a complaint he had received about the taxi company charging a woman 55 cents for a trip, and 30 cents extra for a bag of groceries. Council had voted at an earlier meeting to allow an increase in taxi fares if conditions of the city's taxi ordinance were met.

The matter was turned over to Police Chief Felipe Martinez for checking on compliance.

Blind corners at street crossings came in for discussion and the chief was asked to make a list of such corners for future action by the council.

Martinez asked council if the city police could form a police department association for the purpose of raising funds for uniforms and other activities. Council approved the request.



CONSTRUCTION MOVING ALONG on the new county jail, with bricks being laid along the front of the building, which will feature brick columns. A novel feature of the structure is the narrow slot windows on the north wing, which have unbreakable glass and a shape to discourage any attempts to escape by inmates.

Amnesty Week At City Library

June 24 through 29 has been declared Amnesty Week at the Cameron Public Library. Overdue books may be returned with no fines paid.

The annual summer reading program for children will start June 24. Eligible for certificates are children in grades one through 6. Details are available at the library.

County Livestock Producers Wait Out Sagging Market

In spite of current efforts by congressmen in Washington, no immediate relief is expected soon for sagging prices in the beef and hog industry.

Some county livestock producers are holding back on selling calves in hopes of a raise in prices, but they will have to be moved sometime this summer, especially if it is a dry one and the way it looks now it will be dry.

County Agent Bill McCutchen said things could get rougher before summer is over unless grocery stores start lowering the price of beef and pork to create a heavier demand for the products.

He said there has been plenty of time for the price drop to reach grocery stores and other food sellers, but so far prices have remained high.

McCutchen said some county producers are buying cow and calf pairs or heifers if they have enough grass and have faith in better times ahead.

Cong. W. R. Poage, however, sees a threat of a general depression if prices remain low and the price of feed grain goes down, as he said it is bound to do. He told the US House of Representatives that the drop in cattle prices can lead to a general economic depression unless something is done promptly to reverse the trend.

Before President Nixon left on his Mideast trip, Poage sent a letter to him asking him to restore the statutory limits of beef importation.

The import quotas were abandoned on June 26, 1972 to offset retail meat price increases. The decision to lift quotas "was intended to check the extremely high price of beef which prevailed at that time," Poage said. "Today exactly the reverse situation exists."

Poage's House Agriculture Committee began hearings Tuesday to explore what can be done to help meat processors and feeders. Witnesses included House Speaker Carl Albert, Republican leader John Rhodes and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

Butz told newsmen after the meeting that he is seriously considering up to $100 million in expanded government purchases of beef and pork for donations to schools to help lift live animal prices for distressed cattle and hog producers.

Poage said some people would welcome the development of meat prices dropping further and said, "Maybe it would be nice for them if it did not clearly carry the unmistakable storm warning of an approaching disaster. A depression can cause more misery, more heartaches and indeed more physical loss than a hurricane or a foreign war.

"Now the alarming thing is that I have never seen a depression that did not start with a break in farm prices. I don't mean that every drop in farm prices is going to cause a depression, but I do mean that we have set the stage. We have created the situation, and I am convinced that if we don't take prompt action to stop this decline in farm prices, we will see all our hard earned social gains wiped away."

4 Accidents Leave Damage, Minor Injuries

Police and highway patrol investigated several accidents over the weekend, with only minor injuries reported.

A two-pickup accident at the intersection of North Central and Fourth St. resulted in bruised ribs for Willie C. Porubsky of Cameron, whose pickup turned over upon impact of the collision. Other driver, Roy Law of Cameron, was not injured.

Porubsky was treated at a local hospital andreleased. The accident happened at 9:25 Saturday morning.

At about 3:15 Sunday morning a car driven by Willie Lavan Jr. of Cameron traveling west coming in to town struck a utility pole near the radio station and broke it, disrupting power in the station.

Lavan was treated for facial cuts. He told police he went to sleep. He was taken to a local hospital by Cameron Police officer Maurice Lowery.

No injuries were reported in a two car collision at 9:54 Monday morning when vehicles driven by Mrs. Grace Davis of Cameron and Coleman Kelly Jr. of Cameron were in collision at Second and Houston Streets.

Highway Patrolman Jerry Benson of Rockdale investigated a one vehicle accident at 3:15 Saturday morning in front of Bode's Livestock Commission Co. at Milano. A one-ton truck driven by James Perry Cotton of Milano hit a calf, causing considerable damage to the truck. The driver was not injured and the calf couldn't be found to see if it was hur..

Offshore Oil Boom May Rescue Britain

By Patrick Massey

Reuter -- Britain 's offshore oil boom may rescue this nation just in time from dire financial distress.

"It could not have come at a better time for our economic prospects," declared the Secretary of State for Energy, Eric Varley, after reading the latest flowing report from the oilfields.

This report indicated that oil reserves around British shores were even higher than expected -- perhaps enough to make the country self-sufficient by 1980.

If true, this would relieve Britain of the estimated seven billion dollar - a - year oil import bill which now burdens its international trade deficit.

Without the offshore oil, economic experts find it difficult to see how Britain could hope to struggle out of debt without savagely reducing living standards.

As it is, the nation could soon be producing as much oil as Kuwait and earning a staggering 9.6 billion dollars a year. The sharp oil price increases at the end of 1973, which seemed at first a crushing blow, could then work in Britain's favor.

Some industry sources believe the official estimates may be on the cautious side -- that actual reserves may be much higher than the predicted 2.95 billion tons.

This view appears to have some support in Europe. According to the Guardian newspaper, a secret report to the European Common Market commission suggests that Britain will move into international trade surplus by 1978.

This projection presents something of a challenge to official British Attitudes. The Labor Government is arguing that it should lower its payments to the market purse because Britain's gross national product is threatened with decline.

Ten years ago, nobody dreamt so much oil lay beneath the storm-lashed water of the North Sea. But some natural gas finds inspired the geologists to summon in the oil rigs.

And in November, 1970, British petroleum struck the rich Forties field some 100 miles east of the Scottish coast. It's potential is now reckoned at 400,000 barrels a day, roughly a fifth of Britain's present consumption.

From then on the oil rush built up. At first the big companies were cautious, knowing that to stab a hole two miles deep in the rocky seabed cost on average two and a half million dollars a time.

But the success rate proved high. In 1973 -- the year that Middle East oil prices shot up to a price that changed the world economic picture -- five new North Sea fields were found to be commercially viable. This made a total of 10 so far.

Given a similar rate of success in coming years, present industry projections for British offshore production after 1988 suggest up to 150 million tons a year.

This would represent some 20 to 25 percent above Britain's needs and something like 20 per cent of west Europe's present consumption.

Most of the world's major oil companies have joined the North Sea rush, despite the vast cost. By the end of the decade about 37 million dollars will have been spent in exploration and development.

Extracting North Sea oil is clearly more difficult than sinking a shaft beneath the uncomfortable but unchanging sands of the middle East.

The North Sea's hostile, frothing surface lies some 500 feet above the seabed where the drill starts chewing into rock.

The means the production rigs must be some of the biggest ever built. Working aboard them in the vicinity of 100-foot waves is depressing and sometimes dangerous.

Deep sea divers who operate on the seabed at this depth are working near the limit of known technology. A few years ago useful work at such depths was believed impossible.

Now, pressed to seek out more oil, the industry is even thinking of ways to sink wells 1,500 feet below the surface.

The ferocious winter weather in these northern latitudes precludes any serious work on installing rigs and pipelines during the winter. The acceptable "weather window" usually last from about April to August.

Another Map, New Reserve....

A third day for Folk Fete showed merit at the till.

Charles Hundle, president of Folk Fete, Inc., reports that admissions are up more than 90 percent over the two-day Fete in 1973 and concession sales up almost 90 percent over last Fete. None of the figures include the food booth sales which are operated on lease by clubs and individuals.

Preliminary figures suggest the corporation has built a base for the larger thinking implied in the concept of a community-wide festival for this part of Texas.

Net receipts showed a $700 loss two years ago, a $900 gain last year and an estimated $2,500 gain this year.

Prices were increased only one third at the Armory and a bit above last year in beverages. The gains were in numbers despite rain the third day.

The question is always asked: "Where will the money come from?"

And the answer is money in response to the planning by Folk Fete, Inc., board members and hard work among so many talented volunteers.

For the first time, paid promotion in visual media was used as well as guest spots on talk shows. The combination helped the enormous generosity of the Cen-Tex press in pre-coverage.

The combination not only is putting Cameron on yet another map. But it is putting operating capital in reserve for Folk Fete, Inc.

We anticipate growth for this festival just like we anticipate growth for this Milam County seat.

Building Or Remembering...

Rockdale deposited some momentoes of a city centennial year and other memorabilia in an aluminum time capsule the other day, a climax to a week of celebration.

Cameron earlier had encased in granite and marble various items relating to the downtown renewal.

It seems communities want to be remembered by those generations after them. It is quite normal.

What is most optimistic about this is that both Milam towns project themselves into the future with this type of depository.

It is a sign of pride in what is being done so that beneficiaries can share the experiences of building anew or just remembering.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

FLOUR PRICE DOWN; BREAD PRICE UP?

Rep. Keith G. Sebelius (Kansas) ". . . I call for an end to silence within the baking industry. After the American Baker's Association leadership announced to the public that bread would soon be $1 a loaf and that this spring bread shortages would produce lines that would make the customers forget gas lines, we have heard nothing from this organization.

"At the time, I stated that this was a shameful and factless scare tactic. Since that time, wheat prices have declined almost 50 percent. What has happened to bread prices? They have not declined one penny and in many instances have actually increased. Why?

"If the earlier comments were not selfserving, I ask the ABA to state their case and make a full explanation to the American consumer. They should explain why a twofold increase should precipitate a threefold increase in bread prices when a similar decline in wheat prices does not produce even a marginal reduction in the price of bread.

"Without such a followup, I can only question the motivation of these statements and call for a wheat export embargo. I call upon consumers and producers to draw their own conclusions about the credibility and attitude of the ABA and their high officials towards the two segments of our national food chain which are vital to our survival. . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Check-out girls and managers of supermarkets are unjustly the targets of complaints about rising food prices; the blame belongs elsewhere. A hike in bread prices was blamed on the Russian wheat deal; a phony excuse. Scare tactics of a wheat shortage found the elevators full; transportation to market was the problem.

We suspect that an investigation into the marketing practices of the bread companies might shed some light on the "great bread price hike mystery."

Delegates Complete Draft Approval Of New Charter

AUSTIN, Tex. — Constitutional Convention delegates are entering the make-or-break last laps of their work.

Delegates last week completed first-draft approval of the proposed new state charter after final agreement on the delayed judicial article.

President Price Daniel Jr. said he hopes all articles will be pushed through the third-reading stage by the end of June.

After that, the document will go to the convention's "Submission and Transition Committee," which will wrap up all proposals in package form and return them to delegates.

At this stage, the document and related separate-submission items (like right-to-work) must be approved by a two-thirds majority (121 votes) to be submitted to voters.

The Submission and Transition Committee will serve as a kind of conference committee, seeking compromises which can rally approval of the necessary majority of delegates.

After months of stormy debate and close votes, the convention began to receive praise from many quarters for its efforts to improve the 1876 constitution.

Kind words were still being withheld by the governor, however. Aides to Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he would "find it very difficult" to support the revision in its present form, because recommended changes infringe on gubernatorial powers in areas of veto and calling special legislative sessions.

TRADING STAMP LIMIT? — The State Finance Commission may ban use of trading stamps and other inducements by savings and loan associations to help attract deposits.

The panel's savings and loan section is scheduled to rule on the long-standing issue June 22.

Opponents argue the regulation would curtail advertising by savings and loan associations, would not benefit consumers and would be meaningless to federally-chartered institutions.

An earlier version of the proposed regulation included an exemption for associations competing with other financial institutions which offer stamps and other premiums.

Savings and loan associations are divided on the issue. Several consumer groups have indicated they will offer testimony in opposition to the proposal.

WASTE HEARINGS SET — Texas Water Quality Board has scheduled 12 public hearings over the state to explore problems concerning disposal of industrial solid wastes, a controversial issue.

The first hearing will be held July 11 in Fort Worth with the final one in Austin October 24.

Other hearings are slated for Dallas July 12, Port Arthur July 25, Beaumont July 26, Houston August 6-7, Corpus Christi August 22-23, Brownsville August 30, El Paso September 20, Midland September 26, Amarillo September 27 and Longview October 2.

Legislative committee probes of TWQB, with special attention to its procedures in processing applications for waste disposal sites are scheduled to begin after the Constitutional Convention adjourns.

COURTS SPEAK — A man who entered a Fort Worth hospital with a cut thumb, fainted, fell off the operating table and suffered a brain concussion and loss of two teeth is entitled to $7,211 damages, the State Supreme Court ruled.

The high court held a Houston ironworker should get workmen's compensation benefits due to inhalation of lead and zinc fumes.

The Court of Criminal Appeals held that a policeman who sees a driver making a movement before stopping is not justified in searching the traffic offender's car.

The Court of Criminal Appeals ruled a common law husband is entitled to have a jury pass on whether he was justified in killing his wife's lover though he did not catch them in embrace.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Friends

In "looking back" instead of "looking ahead" as suggested in your valuable paper of the 10th, will say that I remember very well the death of a former Herald editor - Oscar McAnnally. He was killed by a young man who worked in the Herald office, and also lived in the editor's home. The killing occured as they ~~walked~~ together to the office early one morning. I reported cases in the County and District courts at that time and reported this case, which resulted in a hung jury at the first trial. In the second trial the case was dismissed on a plea of "former jeopardy" by the defendant.

In the early nineteen hundreds, Milam County had six or seven newspapers. I made copies of the transfers and little tit bits of of court house news and sent copies to each of these papers - two to Cameron, two to Rockdale, the Buckholts Bulletin, Gause Gazette and one or two others, for which they each paid me a buck. Cameron, for a long time, had two weekly newspapers - the Cameron Herald and the Cameron Enterprise. They were edited by two of the ugliest men in the county - Oscar McAnnally and Paul Keith. At a fun contest these two men tied for the "honor."

Looking back, I also remember Cameron in those days, had a good many saloons. A Saloon was where liquor was sold and as liquor had not reached the high social status of today, was not to be found very often in the homes. Men went to these saloons for their liquor. I remember many of these saloons - Posry's, Black's, Bud and Babe Rich's and many others. All of these saloons had swinging doors as men did not like for their women folks to see them "bellying up to the bar" as the old song went. And ladies were not supposed to even walk on the side walks in front of these saloons. They must turn back even tho it might mean walking another block or two, but not on "saloon row".

Having been born and bred in the dear old beloved Cameron briar patch some 88 years ago it is hard now for me to envision all the changes being made. Being made tho for a better and more beautiful Cameron in looking ahead, instead of looking back.

Your friend,
Mrs. Don L. Arivett
Lakewood, Colo.

Dear Mr. Luecke:

I always enjoy reading The Herald, and news such as the mall dedication causes me to feel much pride for Cameron. I can recall the days when urban renewal for Cameron was just a dream. Many citizens felt it was nonsense. "Some people are trying tu ruin the town by tearing down buildings," is the type of statement heard at that time.

I wish I could name all of these planners, but I do not know their names. Perhaps you could name some of them. I am the daughter of one of them, E. A. Perrin, At that time, I wanted to shout to the complainers "Don't you have any vision?" Instead , I quietly thought, "Just wait."

Well, we've waited. The city of Cameron is now beautiful and appears so much more prosperous. I want to congratulate all the citizens who had the courage to pursue their dream despite opposition. Some of these men and women are not in the forefront now, but they laid the groundwork and I compliment them on a job well done!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Fred M. Carroll

Both Fresh Pork and Ham Win Acceptance Of Major Weight Reduction Organizations

A welcome change has recently taken place for serious dieters. Pork, with an impressive list of credentials to back it, has made the diet scene. Scientific evidence has convinced one after another of the nation's popular weight reducing organizations that both fresh pork and ham merit a place among approved meats for weight control.

The latest group to put their stamp of approval on pork is "Weight Watchers International, Inc.," with chapters that conduct weight control classes in a dozen countries, including our own. Dietitians and the medical advisor of this well known organization became convinced of the importance of modern-day pork in a nutritionally sound weight loss program late last year. Pork already had won acceptance by other weight control organizations such as "TOPS" ("Take Off Pounds Safely") and the "Diet Workshop."

Pork Is Leaner Now

The change in attitude is due to the change in pork itself. Modern agricultural science has reduced the fat content in pork by breeding animals for leanness and by selective feeding methods. Unfortunately it has taken time for pork to shed its "fatty" image.

Dr. William C. Sherman, Nutrition Research Director of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, explains that years ago the fat of pork was a needed source of energy for a population who worked primarily at jobs involving physical labor. As people became more sedentary, however, the need for the energy from fat lessened. So pork was changed dramatically to fit the need—more lean meat for a population with weight problems.

Dr. Sherman points out that when the fat content was reduced, the high quality, complete protein and the other important nutrients pork provided increased proportionately. The top food source of thiamin, pork is also valued for its contribution of riboflavin, niacin, B_6 and B_{12} plus iron and other minerals.

Many Cuts Appropriate

The cooked lean and marble of many pork cuts provide 3½-ounce servings of 250 calories or less, making them eligible for weight reduction diets. For example, smoked ham supplies 205 to 234 calories per serving, depending upon the exact cut. Also included in this group of low-calorie cuts are pork loin roast (227), pork chops (250), fresh picnic shoulder (246), fresh leg center slice (237) and tenderloin (239).

By Johnny Watkins

The land Use Planning Bill that was passed by the Senate last year came before the House of Representatives this past week and was barely defeated by the vote of 211 to 204.

What the bill would do was set up some federal guidelines for operating our land, meaning of course farms and ranches. This vote is very close to our having some Government supervision of when and what we plant, what we bulldoze, spray and in general what we do to our places.

Would you like to find out now how far you can go on your place even with this bill defeated? Try burning some brush piles. See how long before some men drive and say, "What do you thing you are doing? You're polluting the air."

This will come up again. I would suggest that you talk to your County Commissioner about starting a Land Use Planning with the home county in charge of it instead of Washington or Texas. You can talk plenty of sense to a Commissioner for he generally is well acquainted with farming and farm folks.

Speaking of managing a farm, are you going to plant winter grazing? I priced some fertilizer the other day to plow down and the price was $10 per hundred or $200 per ton. Now seed is going to cost another $10 at least and that makes winter grazing plenty high considering the fact that it takes a good calf to bring 30¢ the hundred. There are a lot of people that aren't going to pay it.

Look at the Milo growing over your area and see the number of people that didn't fertilize it this year. Now next year it will be worse. One of these days with lessening production, there is really going to be a shortage of feed and that means people food.

This year reminded me of what my Papa would say, "Son, when cattle are low, most folks think they're never going to go up again, and when they're high they never think they're going to go down again." That's also the way with agricultural production. It has always been nigh in production and now the possibilities exists that it won't be.

That's another ham in the smokehouse.

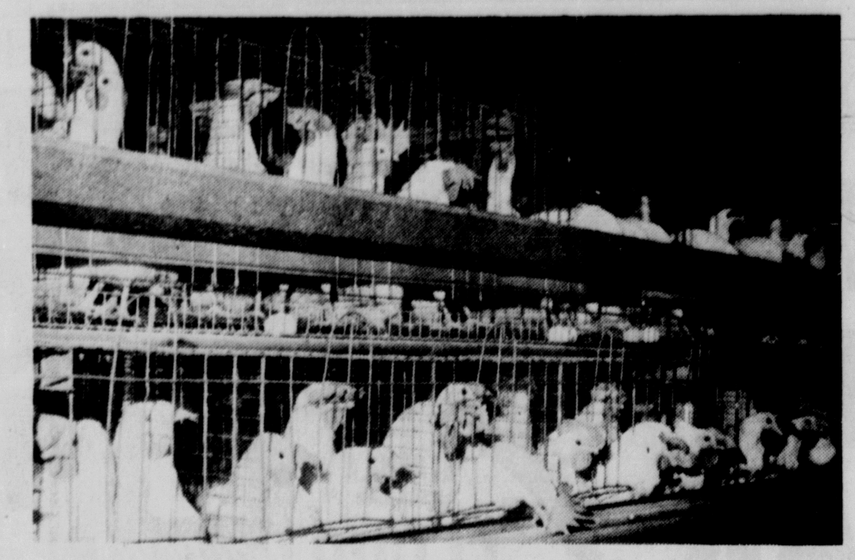
UT Economist Says Gas Will Stay High

Dr. James McKie, a University of Texas economist who has done considerable research on energy and resources, says he believes it is "unvoiced government policy to see to it that the price of gasoline stays high because that is the best way to induce people to conserve it."

Dr. McKie, dean of UT's College of Social and Behavorial Sciences, made that statement after attending a recent conference in Brussels on the "International Energy Crisis." He said he doubted that Americans will see a reduction in present gasoline prices, and added:

"It's going to get worse."



NOBODY HERE BUT US CHICKENS--Eggs are the most nearly perfect source of protein and Texas laying hens plan to keep working at a rate that will keep the customer satisfied. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White says 1973 egg prices averaged the highest in many years, but 1974 prices have been lower.

Screwworms On Increase

Screwworm cases are continuing their northward trek across Texas, and producers are reminded to redouble their efforts against the costly livestock pest.

"Texas has just recorded 590 positive cases in May, or 67 percent of the total cases it has experienced this year to date," warns Dr. M. E. Meadows, Jr., veterinarian in charge of the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Program at Mission.

"With rains received over a number of areas recently, the moisture is expected to increase the opportunities for more worm cases, unless producers really watch their animal and treat all wounds," Meadows says.

Until the beginning of May, only 282 of the flesh-eating worm cases had been identified in the Lone Star State. Only 54 positive cases were reported by the Mission Lab in May, 1973.

Within the past several weeks, Cottle County, in the Rolling Plains area near the Oklahoma line, recorded two screwworm cases, first for the season there. New cases also have been confirmed recently in El Paso, Reagan, Reeves and Crane Counties in the Trans-Pecos and far West Texas areas.

"Earlier, cases had moved north from the Hill Country to Concho, Runnels, and Haskell Counties, which probably accounts for the cases now occurring in Cottle," says Meadows.

Non-screwworm samples submitted by producers dipped somewhat in May, "With the Gulf Coast ticks expected to create additional worm problems, especially in the southern portions of Texas, all producers should join in the battle against screwworms," adds Meadows.

To make the battle more effective, producers should carefully check animals regularly for wounds, submit samples from worms found in wounds, treat all wounds, and spray or dip livestock on a regular basis.

Blackland Farmers To Tour A&M Center

Farmers and ranchers from the Blackland of Central and North Central Texas will tour the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at Dallas July 2 to review agricultural research and educational programs.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. and the program will start at 9:15 a.m. according to John Box, agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and secretary of the Blackland Income Growth (BIG) program. BIG covers about 50 counties and is designed to boost the total agricultural economy of the area.

Following opening remarks by Huey Whitehurst, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station superintendent at the Center, and Uel Stockard, district agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the visiting group will embark on tours of field work at the Center.

Sorghum Crop Tops Record

AUSTIN--Aided by an excellent growing season, Texas grain sorghum growers broke records in 1973 with a 62-bushel an acre yield and total production amounting to 421,000,600 bushels.

"I don't know when we've ever put a season together for sorghum that was as good as this one as far as the weather was concerned," said Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

He pointed to good moisture before and during the planting season and good rains throughout the growing season as factors in the quantity and quality of '73's crop. Quality is expected to be above average around the state.

Nearly a billion bushels of grain sorghum had been projected for the United States in 1973. Texas is the country's leading producer.

The state's previous production high had been set in 1967 with 343,485,000 bushels.

In the Lower Rio Grande Valley a 37-million bushel harvest was double of that last year. As a result, many growers replanted, anticipating a good market. Currently the crop is bringing $4.50 a hundredweight or 100 pounds. Second planting harvest is expected to continue into January.

Harvest begins in the Valley in July and progresses into Central Texas, the Blacklands, the Low and Rolling Plains and finally into the High Plains. Harvest in December was 99 per cent complete as compared with 89 per cent at the same time a year ago.

The Northern High Plains remained the chief producer of grain sorghum in the state with 148 million bushels. Sixty-seven million bushels were harvested in the Low Plains and 44 million in the Blacklands.

Most of the grain sorghum grown in South Texas is exported. Sorghum grown in the North finds its way into Panhandle feedlots.

Meat Protein Has It All

The protein in meat is complete, high quality protein, containing all the essential amino acids needed for growth, maintenance and repair of body tissue. Plant and vegetable proteins do not contain all essential amino acids, so they are incomplete and of lower biological quality. In addition to complete protein, meat also provides B-vitamins, iron, other minerals, trace elements and micronutrients not readily available from other sources.

Lumps for Beef Growers . . . Ideas for Cattlemen . . . Brucellosis Again . . . Fewer Turkeys Coming.

THE BEEF industry is taking its lumps, and, as usual in such cases, there are several theories about the cause. One is that the demand in this country was down. Americans ate 14 pounds less beef in 1973 than they did in 1972. Another is that the export demand was less and that other countries imposed export controls, while the United States has no such controls on imported beef. As you can imagine, there are some people calling for government restrictions on beef imports, and that may be imperative, but right now is only in the talking stage. U. S. Agriculture Secretary Butz says that because Americans ate less beef last year doesn't mean they like beef less. He said less red meat was marketed because of consumer boycotts and government price manipulation. And that sounds reasonable; but, in the meantime, cattlemen pay more for what they must buy and get less for what they sell.

YOU MIGHT have noticed that the governor of Oklahoma, David Hall, introduced a resolution before the recent governor's conference calling for a change in meat grading standards and introduction of a national "check off" program on slaughter cattle to promote beef. Texas pork producers recently approved a check-off program of promotion, education and research, and insect, disease and predator control. This program will be getting underway about July 1. Other commodity groups who have similar programs include peanuts, soybeans, grain sorghum, pecans, turkeys, and wheat. Such programs are authorized under the Texas Commodity Referendum Law which is administered by Commissioner White.

KAUFMAN and Washington Counties cattlemen have fewer restrictions now on brucellosis testing requirements. Those two counties have been restored to "modified-certified" status, the USDA reports. At the same time, Cherokee, Navarro, and Wood Counties, all in northeastern Texas, have been taken off the modified-certified brucellosis area list; and cattlemen there who ship beef for dairy-breeding animals will have more brucellosis testing requirements.

APPARENTLY TEXANS will produce fewer turkeys this year than they did in 1973. There were fewer turkey eggs set every week in May than were set in May, 1973, ranging from 71 per cent fewer in the week ending June 1 to 96 per cent fewer in the week ending May 18. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reported that there were 251,000 heavy breed turkey poults hatched in the State during the week ending June 1, and that was 25 per cent fewer than a year ago and nine per cent fewer than the previous week.

INSECTS ARE on the rampage in some areas. Walnut caterpillars have been reported pillaging pecans in some Central Texas areas. Sorghum midges are also hitting grain sorghum in Central Texas, and boll weevils have been reported flourishing in many areas of the State where cotton is big enough to supply them something to eat.

RAINS HAVE blessed areas in the State, but there is still a short supply of moisture on the High and Low Plains, handicapping planting. This probably initiated the joke about a West Texas drouth: A tourist stopped at a service station (when it had gas) and commented to the old-timer serving him that it looked like rain.

"Hope it does rain," the old-timer said. "Not for myself but for my grandson. I've seen rain."

Texas Wheat Production To Decrease

AUSTIN--Texas wheat production is expected to decrease 29.3 million bushels from 1973 totals mainly due to the failure of the dryland wheat crop on the High Plains.

Growth of dryland wheat was very slow during the dry fall and winter, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported recently. "Though the recent rains were a blessing, they came to late to help much of the dryland acreage," he said.

Projections for the 1974 harvest were 78,400,000 bushels. However, drought conditions from January to April revised projections downward to 69,300,000 bushels, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

"This is more than a 9 million bushel decrease from the December projection, which was already significantly lower than 1973's total production," White said.

Texas produced a record 98,600,000 bushels in 1973 and farmers averaged 29 bushels an acre. The estimated yield per acre for 1974 is 21 bushels.

Nationally, the wheat picture is a little brighter. Estimated winter wheat production is more than 1.6 billion bushels -- a 27 percent increase over last year.

President Holds Informal Meetings

Although he's outnumbered 40,000 to 1, President Stephen H. Spurr of The University of Texas encourages face-to-face encounters with students.

For about two hours each month, the UT president regularly holds informal meetings in his office with 50 or more students randomly selected from the student directory.

Through candid answers to a wide range of questions and concerns of average students, Dr. Spurr believes the casual meetings help overcome the lopsided student-president ration.

"This will be an excellent experience for these boys who have never been to a real camp," Homerstad said. "They will enjoy boating, hiking, archery, horseback riding, fishing, swimming, handicrafts, movies and baseball as well as worship services and Bible study."

"Each boy's trip was financed by the Cameron service Unit committee with donations from private citizens in our community," Homerstad said.

"Where does my 'Electric Bill Dollar' go?"

When you pay your Texas Power & Light electric service bill, we hope you think of the many comforts, conveniences and pleasures electricity helps make possible.

But, we're frequently asked—and maybe you've been wondering—"Where does my 'electric bill dollar' go?"

Let's take a look at the 1973 dollar.

Out of every dollar received from every customer last year, 21¢ was used to pay for the fuels needed to generate electric power . . . natural gas, coal and oil.

In 1973, the expenses of running generating plants, keeping plants, lines, trucks and other facilities and equipment in good operating condition, paying the salaries of employees, etc., required 20¢ of each "electric bill dollar".

Another 20¢ of each dollar was needed for federal, state and local taxes. In many of the cities and towns it serves, TP&L is the largest single taxpayer.

Funds to pay interest on the Company's indebtedness and for dividends on preferred and common stock accounted for an additional 22¢ of the 1973 "electric bill dollar".

The remaining 17¢ of the dollar, representing funds set aside for depreciation costs and stockholder earnings not paid out in dividends, was used by the Company for construction of new generating plants, lines and other facilities.

Just as you must budget your income and make adjustments because of rising costs and changing conditions, so must Texas Power & Light. We're tightening our belts . . . looking for ways to produce and supply electricity more efficiently and more economically, while continuing to provide the dependable service you expect for your "electric bill dollar".

Today's English Bible To Be Complete In 1976

NEW YORK

"Good News, America!"

The American Bible Society today enters the nation's bicentennial era with the announcement of this new slogan -- "Good News, America!" -- a theme designed to relate the Scriptures to the nation's 200th birthday celebration.

"The best news is that the entire Bible in the Today's English Version will be published in 1976," asserted the Rev. Dr. Laton E. Holmgren, general secretary. "This bicentennial Bible will be the Society's gift to America on its 200th anniversary and may well be the publication event of the decade."

When the New testament was published in the Today's English Version in 1966, it zoomed right to the top of the best seller list and remained on that list for four years. It is now the best selling paperback in history, having taken that place in 1971.

Encouraged by this skyrocketing success, a team of scholars headed by the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Bratcher, research associate of the American Bible Society, began translation of the Old Testament in the Today's English Version in 1967.

The "Good News Bible" is expected to exceed the distribution record of "Good News for Modern Man," the popular name for the Today's English Version New Textament. For all those who cannot afford even the miniscule nonprofit cost of the entire "Good News Bible," the Society plans to distribute Good New Scripture, where needed, without charge, to the helpless, the homeless, the hopeless.

Through "Good News, America!" the Bible Society in partnership with local churches and thousands of volunteers, will participate in a town-to-town, home-to home Scripture sharing program, bringing the Word of God to every man, woman and child.

"Good News, America!" was launched by the American Bible Society on June 16 with the presentation and special distribution of a Good News pioneer Scripture Selection at Harrodsburg, Kentucky (Fort Harrod), America's first settlement west of the Alleghenies. This Good News settler Selection is illustrated with dramatic full color scenes of Kentucky, and features that state's bicentennial theme: "200 Years of Faith."

GETTING CAUGHT!

When the jelly disappeared from the refrigerator, when a baseball shattered the window, when Mother discovered the stray cat sleeping in her washbasket . . . like a magnetic needle the accusing finger of my parents pointed toward me.

It's a crushing experience to get caught. But it can teach us a vital lesson. We soon discover a sense of responsibility and learn our obligation to others. Our true identity emerges.

The Church stands ready to help us learn responsibility. Through religious education youth today can still discover personal identity—while gaining a responsible view of man's obligations to God and to society.

Students To Attend FB Seminar

WACO

More than 500 high school juniors and seniors from all over Texas are expected to attend the 12th annual High School Students Citizenship Seminar July 15 - 19. The seminar is sponsored by the Texas Farm Bureau.

County Farm Bureaus have indicated they intend to sponsor more students at this year's seminar than ever before.

The seminar, held on the campus of Baylor University, will include lectures, films, and discussion concerning "our American heritage and the threat of Communism," according to J. T. (Red) Woodson, president of the TFB. The students' attendance is sponsored by county Farm Bureaus, and they are selected on the basis of scholastic achievement, character, and leadership ability.

Several outstanding speakers have been engaged to appear on the program of this year's seminar, the TFB spokesman said. They include Dr. Clifton Ganus, president of Harding College Searcy, Ark.; Hans Oodegard world traveller, author, and lecturer from Denmark.

Also, W. Cleon Skousen, author, lawyer, educator, and former FBI agent from Salt Lake City, Utah; Dr. Bill Ray Cox, vice president of Harding College and director of the National Education Program, Searcy, Ark.; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ray, ex-heroin addicts associated with the Help Is Possible organization in Dallas.

Woodson said the seminar is regarded as one of the major annual activities of the Texas Farm Bureau.

Demos Plan Telethon

Democratic comptroller nominee Bob Bullock said Monday that Texas' share of money from a national Democratic telethon later this month should go to the county level party organizations for voter registration and get-out-the vote drives.

"This money shouldn't stay in Austin," Bullock said. "It's coming from the Democrats out in the counties and it should go back there."

Bullock said the $250,000 expected to be Texas's share is "just about the right size windfall to do the job of getting every eligible Democrat registered and to the polls."

Fast Growing Country Has Lessons For Texas

The fastest growing country in the world has some lessons for Texas.

That country is Israel. My wife Diana and I had the opportunity to visit Israel last month. For five days we toured Israeli schools and hospitals and were briefed by government officials on the problems that country faces.

What are those problems and how do they resemble those of Texas? Like Texas, Israel is a rapidly growing state, an increasingly urban state, and an increasingly industrial state. Like Israel, Texas has a large minority of its people who need special education to work in an increasingly technical and complex world.

Unlike Texas, Israel makes a massive effort to help its citizens who need new skills learn what they need to learn in order to become productive citizens.

In spite of the fact that our world civilization began in the Middle East, that our religion (Christian, Jewish or Moslem) began in Israel, it is today what Texas was a few generations ago: a frontier state, struggling for survival. Israel cannot afford to have citizens of working age who cannot contribute to the national effort. So she makes the massive commitment to education that she must to survive.

Twenty-five years ago, when the modern state of Israel was being born, most of the emigrants were from Western Europe. Most of those early emigrants were highly trained and educated people. They came from countries with fine systems of public education. Many of them came from families with traditions of educational and professional excellence.

That pattern has now changed. Most of the emigrants now are from North Africa and the Middle East. These newer emigrants frequently lack the skills necessary to survive in a modern technical society. So Israel has developed a variety of programs to see to it that the newcomers learn the skills the country needs. Some of this training takes place in the cities, some on farms and in kibbutzes. But it takes place.

In short, Israel, in order to survive, has had to make the investment necessary to see that each citizen functions at the highest possible level.

That's the lesson we Texans can learn from Israel. In Texas, we have one of the highest unemployment rates of any state. We have the highest dropout rate from our school system. We have more poor people than any other state. In fact, one person out of every ten classified by the federal government as poor lives in Texas.

We are beginning to do something about these problems. Every year our system of community colleges grows remarkably. And most of that growth by far is in the technical subjects.

Each year vocational education comes closer to getting the emphasis it deserves in our school system. But we've got a long way to go, and a lot of lessons to learn from a small nation about the size of Houston and Dallas put together.

Pioneer Day Planned With Singing, Fiddling

TEMPLE

Singing, fiddling, dancing and plenty of reminiscing will be in store for pioneers of Central Texas Saturday, June 29, in Temple.

The Central Texas Pioneer Club will help the city in celebrating its 93rd birthday that day.

Pioneer Day, sponsored annually by the Temple Daily Telegram on the Saturday nearest June 29, will get underway at 9 a.m. at the spacious, air conditioned Air conditioned Arnold Student Union on the Temple Junior College campus, 2600 S. 1st St.

The festivities will mark the 43rd annual meeting of the Central Texas Pioneer Club. The celebration honors the founding of the city in 1881, named for B. M. Temple, a Santa Fe railroad engineer.

The birthday celebration was started in 1932 by the Temple Daily Telegram to honor the city's founders and give them a chance to sing, reminisce and be entertained. Anyone who has lived in Bell or an adjacent county at least 50 years is eligible for membership.

Registration will be at 9 a.m. at TJC. Morning activities will include performances by the Harvest House choir, the Kountry Kitchen Kombo, a group singalong, a performance by the Beseda Dancers and music by Big John and The Esquires.

Domino playoffs will be throughout the morning and a pie contest will precede lunch.

During the afternoon, the Harvest House Squares will give an exhibition of square dancing with William L. Wilson calling. Larry Guess, chairman of the TJC Music Department will present several solo selections. Awards will be given during mid-afternoon ceremonies.

Highlighting the afternoon agenda will be the annual fiddlers contest which will begin at 2:15 p.m.

The contest will be open to any person 50 years old and older and winners will share a $100 pot.

How To Correct Computer Bills

Get results from computer-calculated bills.

"If you receive an incorrect bill, shred it," Lillian Cochran, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, advised.

"Place the shredded bill--along with a note of explanation -- in an envelope, and mail it to the company. This requires personal attention -- whereas just a handwritten note might be ignored.

"The main point it to mutilate the bill in such a way that the computer is forced to take action," she said.

WHERE WAS UT MATERIAL

Well, those SWC Track Coaches who accuse UT's Cleburne Price of gutting the Conference, "With all that material," must feel a little foolish today. If Texas has an excessive amount of star quality, it does not show up in the NCAA Championship meet. Fifteen UT points makes rest of the SWC look as competitive as a Commune Sergeant - at Arms. Remember that Baylor Cinder Coach Clyde Hart, a real Texas baiter, said prior to the loop meet, "Texas has what we call cinch points. It can almost sew things up in the field events alone."

Dallas Author Blackie Sherrod, one of the country's more colorful sports portrayers, asks: "Quick, now, what do these names have in common: Ben Crenshaw, David Clyde, TonynDorsett Richard Washington, Duane Bobich, Bill Walton, Darrell McHargue? Elementary, my dear Watson. They are all short of tooth and flat of belly and can get a month's work out of one razor blade. From left-to-right, they are the young Turks of golf, baseball, college football college basketball, boxfighting, pro basketball and horseracing. And, they are destined to rule their sports, or semi-rule it, for years and years to come."

Speaking of Super Texas Sports Authors, (And, we've been blessed with some of the best and worst) Mickey Herskowitz's "Cosell" has already sold more copies than any other sports book in American history. Of course, Mickey's not only a clever writer but a shrewd businessman. Howard Cosell's caustic, irreverent mouth has made many, many people furious. And, people buy books about those kind to, "See what that clown is REALLY like." Now. Mickey's doing one on Dan Rather . Speaking of mouths.

QUICKIES:

John Newcombe, about Bjorn Borg, the 17-year old Swedish Superba he beat in World Tennis Finals, "Bjorn will be one of the great players in the world, if he keeps his head on straight. You'd never know by reading Houston sports pages, but: David Chalk, who two years ago was a three-times All-American third-baseman for the University of Texas, is not only the California Angel's starting shortstop but a budding major league Superkid. Whitney Herzob, former Texas Ranger manager, and now Angel Coach, says Chalk cannot miss and could just be the American League Rookie-of-the Year.

Museum To Show Old Cotton Tools

WACO

Tools and instruments used during the era when "cotton was king" in Waco have been donated to Baylor University's John K. Strecker Museum.

The materials were donated to the museum by Cecil "Cappy" Crow Jr., owner of Waco's Crow Scale co., which was originated by Crow's father, Cecil Crow Sr. The company now manufactures seedameters, instruments that weight cotton seeds for planting.

The major item donated to the museum is a cotton scale made in 1957, that is the last of its kind manufactured in the United States.

David Lintz, technical staff assistant at the museum, said the scale is completely handmade and measures accurately "to within 1/2 ounce of 500 pounds."

Lintz said a beam on the scale is capable of weighing to 700 pounds. The scale was set up in the cotton field, than a bale of cotton was placed on a hook attached to the beam and weighed in the presence of the buyer.

Other items donated to the museum by Crow include a scale, circa 1860, that weighs 250 pounds on one side and 60 pounds on the other. The museum also acquired a hand-cranked drill press, old anvil tools, a hand-forged screwdriver, a cotton augure, a skill saw and hook maker.

Lintz said an exhibit of the cotton-related items is in the process of being arranged and should be ready for display soon. The Strecker Museum is located in the basement of Baylor's Sid Richardson Science Building.

The museum is open free to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MILAM

NOTICE CONCERNING THE INTENTION OF THE COMMISSIONERS' COURT OF MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, TO AUTHORIZE THE ISSUANCE OF UP TO FOURTEEN MILLION DOLLARS POLLUTION CONTROL REVENUE BONDS (ALUMINUM COMPANY OF AMERICA PROJECT), SERIES 1974 OF THE COUNTY OF MILAM IN THE STATE OF TEXAS (AND WHICH BONDS CANNOT BE PAID FROM FUNDS DERIVED FROM TAXATION)

In compliance with the provisions of the "Clean Air Financing Act" (otherwise known as Article 4477-5a., Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes), the qualified electors of Milam County, Texas, are hereby notified of the intention of Milam County, Texas, to issue up to $14,000,000.00 Pollution Control Revenue Bonds (Aluminum Company of America Project), series 1974, as follows:

The Commissioners' Court of Milam County, Texas, adopted a Resolution on September 6, 1973, pursuant to written request of Aluminum Company of America, (which Resolution was supplemented by said Court on June 13, 1974), agreeing, subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions, to the issuance by said County of its Revenue Bonds in the amount of up to FOURTEEN MILLION DOLLARS, the proceeds of which are to be used to acquire, construct and improve "control facilities" as that term is defined in said Act, Section 5 (i) of said Act referred to above provides:

Before any city, town, village, or county issues any bonds or notes secured by the revenues described in Section 5(d) (1) of this Act, such city, town, village, or county must publish notice of its intention to issue the bonds or notes at least one time in a newspaper of general circulation within the boundaries of such city, town village, or county. Within 30 days after the date of such publication not less than 10 percent of the qualified electors of the city, town, village, or county issuing such bonds or notes, may file a petition with the clerk or secretary, as the case may be, of the governing body, praying the governing body to order an election for the purpose of submitting the proposition to issue such bonds or notes to a vote of the qualified electors of such city, town, village, or county as the case may be. Upon the filing of such petition, such governing body shall order an election to be held in such city, town, village, or county to determine whether or not such bonds or notes shall be issued as indicated in such notice. The governing body shall determine the time and the place or places of holding said election; and the manner of holding same shall be governed by the Texas Election Code. If the proposition for the issuance of such bonds or notes be sustained by a majority of the qualified electors voting at such election on such proposition, then such bonds or notes shall be authorized and may be issued by the governing body. In the event no such petition is presented to the governing body within the time hereinabove prescribed, no election on the proposition shall be required, and such governing body shall then have the power to proceed with the issuance of the bonds or notes, as the case may be.

You are further notified and advised that Sec. 5 (h) of said Act provides.

All such bonds or notes shall be special obligations payable solely from the revenues pledged to their payment and shall not be considered general obligations of the governing body, an issuer, or the State of Texas. The holder of the bonds or notes shall never have the right to demand payment from moneys derived by taxation or any other revenues of the issuer except those revenues pledged to the payment of the bonds or notes.

Said Commissioners' Court has further ordered that this notice be published at least one time, in THE CAMERON HERALD, and THE ROCKDALE REPORTER, which are newspapers of general circulation within the boundaries of said County.

MILK OR CREAM . . . WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE

WHOLE MILK contains at least 8% nonfat milk solids. Milk solids contain protein, minerals, and most of the vitamins found in milk. Whole milk should also contain 3.5% milk fats, one source of Vitamin A. Most whole milk has been fortified with Vitamin D. An 8-ounce serving contains 160 calories.

SKIM MILK has had most of the fat removed, and is fortified with Vitamins A and D and with some milk solids. An 8-ounce serving has 90 calories.

TWO-PERCENT MILK contains 1-2% fat, and most brands have been fortified with Vitamin A and D and with some milk solids. An 8-ounce cup is 145 calories.

BUTTERMILK is skim milk to which a special culture has been added to produce the rich body and acidic flavor. An 8-ounce cup contains 90 calories.

EVAPORATED MILK is a whole milk concentrate. Enough water is removed to reduce the volume by half. It is also fortified with Vitamin D. One 8-ounce cup, undiluted, contains 345 calories.

SWEETENED, CONDENSED MILK is whole milk with sugar added and 60% of the water removed. One 8-ounce cup, undiluted, contains 980 calories.

INSTANT, NONFAT, DRY MILK has had all fat removed and is usually fortified with Vitamins A and D. One 8-ounce cup, reconstituted, contains 90 calories. One 8-ounce cup of the chocolate-flavored variety, reconstituted, contains 130 calories.

HALF & HALF is a mixture of milk and cream averaging 11% fat. One tablespoon contains 20 calories.

LIGHT CREAM has 18% or more fat. One tablespoon contains 30 calories.

WHIPPING CREAM contains 30-36% fat. One tablespoon has 45-55 calories. When a recipe calls for "heavy cream," whipping cream should be used.
